The ecological damage of global sporting events

Introduction:

"6,500 foreign workers died during the construction of the 2022 World Cup infrastructure in Qatar."

I am a football player myself and when I saw the organisation of this world event, I was very shocked by the lack of respect for human rights and the environment. These are very important values in the organisation of such a sporting event and they are close to my heart.

One may ask if we can continue to practice and participate in sports events while respecting the environment?

To answer this question, I will first present two images and compare them. Then, I will give you a thoughtful, worked and personal opinion on the question.

Conclusion:

To conclude and to give my opinion on this subject, i think it's possible to continue to practice or participate in sports events while respecting the environment. But necessary to find conditions as alternative sustainable solutions to global warming. As the picture on the right shows, we need to develop renewable energies.
